

Brandon Foreman

[BRANDON FOREMAN, a HACC student, sits in a classroom wearing a blue, quarter-zip shirt speaking to an interviewer off camera.]

BRANDON FOREMAN:

What mainly brought me to HACC is that I was still trying to figure out exactly what career path I wanted to go. I knew I wanted to do something business, so I figured I'd come here for the Business Program and try to figure out more of what I want to do. I chose HACC because I know it's a good school. It has a good education, and it's local and convenient as well, so I figured I'd take advantage of those aspects. I would say come to HACC because, you know, coming in here, you don't necessarily have to have your career exactly laid out. I mean, you have to have a plan, but you can kind of come here and experience different steps in business, taking different classes and kind of try to figure out exactly which one best fits you and what you want to do.