

Edilawit Woldeselassie

[EDILAWIT WOLDESELASSIE, a HACC alumna, sits in front of a window, wearing a dark blazer and a white button-front shirt. She is speaking to an interviewer off camera.]

EDILAWIT WOLDESELASSIE:

Well, I was looking for to change my job. And then I thought probably I might need, like, some kind of certification or degree to change my route from the job that I do. And then, I went to HACC to get some information, and the affordability is number one. And then proximity. And the area that I was living in at that time, it was very close to my job. And the flexibility of the classes. And it was working very great with my job schedule. And then I was able to take it without any problem at all, doing my job full-time, and then sometimes even six days a week and 12 hours a day. And then I was able to graduate.