TIM WODARCZYK:

So I went on HACC's website, just browsed all the different science and medical majors and settled on cardiovascular technology. And then I kind of had this whole thing planned out for two months, like applying and choosing a major, and then actually come here for my first day, it was really refreshing and I just, I knew it was the right thing to do. Right now I'm kind of zeroed in on morning classes because I'm like, I'm like, really specialized in my program now. When I first started, they had all kinds of morning classes and evening classes, online just for those more gen-ed type things that I did still need. Working third shift, I kind of had like, like really specific needs for those first two semesters. And, yeah, online, night, evening, small classes too. So you get at least for the classes I had. I had a good time with the professors as well. So, yeah. Lots of class options, professor, time. Our anatomy and physiology, class had a, like a student tutor as well, which I went to those review sessions, and that was really helpful. But in terms of getting you ready for your career at a reasonable price, nice and efficiently, it's definitely the way to go.
